It is being pushed the ground that he was leaving the senate continues its protracted debate put down his exemption and wished him luck. One Frenchman who registered said he was the last of four brothers to go. I didn't question him as to what he meant by "go" but his expression and manner seemed to indicate that it meant everything. He claimed no exemption. I registered a German who didn't want to claim exemption-except that he wanted to stipulate that he serve only in Amer ica. He said that if he had to go to Europe he might for all he knew be shooting at his own father. Otherwise he was willing to serve. Of course I put him down as not claiming exemption, and he will have to straighten the matter out before exemption boards. There seemed to be practically no slackers, in the sense will be taken on to their destinations of persons trying to claim exemption without good grounds. In fact, in several cases, men whose answers to the questions regarding family responsibilities clearly showed their right to exemption, no exemption was claimed. NEW TRAINING CAMPS One such man said it would look better not to claim it, and he would leave it to the boards to dispose of his case on the merits.
